FOREWORD

This publication accompanies a new set of computerized maps setting out each catholic parish in Ferns diocese and in County Wexford. View the work on-line on the Wexford County Council website, www.wexford.ie. Click on “interactive maps”.

The difficulty of establishing accurate parish boundaries is well known. The boundaries of the Ferns diocese were loosely defined at the Synod of Rathbreasail, Co. Tipperary in 1111. They were based on the Ui Chennsalaigh territory ruled by the Mac Murchada family and have changed little since that time. The parish structure formalized by the Anglo-Normans in the 11th & 12th centuries was based on the earlier pastoral care. Up to the Reformation, Ferns had over 130 parishes but the numbers fluctuated over the following centuries. In 1837, thirty five parishes were recorded. The number now stands at forty nine.

For historical reasons, not all Catholic parish boundaries coincide with the townland boundaries. This results in parts of townlands being included in adjoining parishes. Since townlands are the only clearly defined, official boundaries available, it is impossible to divide them between parishes. Hence to prepare parish maps each townland had to be allocated to a particular parish.

In 1993, written lists of townlands in their parishes were obtained from the parish priests. An analysis of these lists showed that fifty-three townlands were shared between two parishes<sup>1</sup>. Using the priests' lists and an earlier map of the Catholic Diocese of Ferns, and through consultation with parish priests, the townlands in each parish have been assigned now and maps prepared. To allow the computerized maps to be made, divided townlands were allocated to the parish that already had the larger share.

A project of this nature is possible only through the commitment and meticulous work of dedicated researchers and technicians. Wexford County Council gratefully acknowledges the generous support of so many people throughout the county who contributed their knowledge and advise. Particular thanks is due to the members of the Project Team, who in association with the Council's Library Service, laboured long and diligently to complete this mapping exercise so well.
